Wesley's strength lies in fielding

(By a "Daily News" sports reporter)

Only one coloursman in the team. That should convey the impression that Wesley College field rather a weak team. But it is a different story. In their ranks are seven, who turned out for the side last year.

Wesley has a young but keen side. The accent has been placed on fielding. The bowling is good and the batsmen can be expected to produce big scores. They are confident of doing well this season. Their season opens tomorrow on the Mount Lavinia against St. Thomas'.

Harold Jurainsz, the only 'coloursman', skips the side. This third year might be called in to shoulder greater responsibility as ted himself well to fill the opening bowler's vacancy created by Adihetty. He is an aggressive right hand bat.

A brilliant extra cover fieldsman is the first of the schoolboy cricketing twins, Mano Rajasingham. He was among the runs last season and with the experience gained, is expected to end the season with a fat average.

Opening bat

Hilary de Vos opens the attack with his left arm swingers. He can move the ball both ways. He will partner Samararatne as opening bat too.

Like his twin-brother, Mano Rajasingham is a top-class field in the covers. He played in a few games last season. He is a dependable right hand bat.

By far the best bat on the side is fresher, Lorenz Ebert, who will go in two down. He too is a safe field in the gully.

The main wicket-taker this season is expected to be Olkie Edama, a left arm spinner, specialising in the "Chinaman". He is a fair field and bat.

Senthil Sinniah adds variety to the attack with his right-arm leg spinners. He is a good field. Left-arm spinner, who breaks little, but keeps pegging away at a good length, is Dudley Amarasinghe. He is a fair bat and field.

Among those trying for places are R. Atukorale D. Amarasinghe a hard hitting right-hand bat and an off-spin K. Dharmaratne, the reserve wicket-keeper, A. K. David, a fair bat.

captain, but he is not the only one who has performed well. He has turned out for the side in the early part of the season. He has won the Muttu trophy in cricket season.

A dependable batsman is capable of making big scores. Although he used the bat last year, he will bowl this year as a change. He is a medium pace bowler.

Another bowler in the team is N. Abey Suriya, who is also a batsman. He is expected to play in all where the batting is weak.

Wicket-keeper, Upali Samararatne, has shown much improvement in his eye for quick runs. He is expected to be a successful wicket-keeper. He was a slow bowler but he has adopted
